build your anti-wolf fence also. So here's what we're going to do. We're going to let you know that we have reconnoitered and, if we give you the time that we're talking about now and you take advantage of it, you will be able to build your anti-wolf fence. But if you do not build that fence, then maybe nature, in her wisdom, has determined that the wolf, which is a carnivore, which is a predator, needs some prey and you have been designated that prey. Every creature which can think recognizes that in order to escape the predator actions have to be taken, and you have time to do that. Usually those critters that fall prey, they've got to be weaker than the predator, but often they are sick, they are old or have some other defect which will cause nature to feel that, by culling them, the species has a better chance to survive because those defective ones will not pass their genes into the gene pool. So, using that analogy, I do believe that if Senator Kremer's amendment is adopted it will serve notice to everybody who has an interest because they are focusing on what the Legislature's doing on this bill. So, in a way, the Legislature may be doing...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...a service and saving people from themselves by letting them know, if something is to be done in this area you have got to get up and start doing it. And if you choose not to do it you will bear consequences, but it is your own fault and there is nobody who, at that point, is going to bail you out. Bailing time is now. This is the time. The Legislature is the place. I'm going to say, like they say, Senator Redfield, if not now, when? If not by us, by whom? And I don't remember what the rest of it is, but I think you get the point. Senator Kremer, you persuaded me, you changed my mind. I'm going to vote for your amendment.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Bromm.

SENATOR BROMM: Question, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Yours is the last light, Senator Bromm. Senator Kremer, to close on your amendment. Senator Kremer, to close on your amendment.
